In 2004 the Norfolk language was recognised by the Norfolk Island Government as the official language of Norfolk Island with the passing of the Norfolk Island Language (Norf"k) Act 2004. The Act recognises Norf"k, and the right of Norfolk Islanders to speak and write it freely without interference or prejudice.

Recognising the traditional skills involved in the lighter-building process and the cultural significance to Norfolk Island, the Norfolk Island Museum made a decision to photograph and record each stage of the process of building No. 03. On behalf of the Museum, Gaye Evans and others would regularly visit the shed to film and describe each stage.

Norfolk Island was first settled by East Polynesian seafarers either from the Kermadec Islands north of New Zealand or from the North Island of New Zealand. They arrived in the fourteenth or fifteenth century, and survived for several generations before disappearing. [1] Their main village site has been excavated at Emily Bay, and they also left behind stone tools, the Polynesian ...
