

In 2004 Pitcairn made international headlines when seven of its 12 men were convicted of sexually abusing children. Now, its current mayor has been found guilty of possessing child abuse images.

Today, Pitcairn Island strives to provide a safe and nurturing environment for its residents, focusing on healing and creating a brighter future. Why is Pitcairn Island not heavily populated? Pitcairn Island's small population can be attributed to several factors. The island's limited natural resources and lack of modern industries make it ...

New Zealand, and the Australian territory of Norfolk Island, are Pitcairn's jump off points, and home to the bulk of Pitcairn's diaspora. It is a generally accepted fact that, due to the severity of their crimes, the remaining convicted men would be denied permanent settlement visas, and, in some cases, even transit visas, through either ...

Halfway between New Zealand and South America are the Pitcairn Islands. Of the four islands, Pitcairn is the only inhabited one. It is one of the most remote inhabited islands on Earth. The island is home to descendants of the HMAV Bounty mutineers, who settled on the island in 1790, although nowadays there are also quite a few other people living on the island, including ...
